

I believe these laws protect people from being constantly bothered at home. It has come to the point that I am paying my telephone company for call blocking and call intercept services in order to protect my home and family from the constant berage of solicitors who feel it's ok to harrass people in their home in order to further their bottom line. I think it's absolutely ridiculous that it is costing me more money on my monthly phone bill in order to stop these telemarketers from getting through to me at home. These laws should be as strict as possible in order to prevent these calls from happening AT ALL!
